Impact of Alcohol Policies on Health in Rural Northern Wisconsin: Barron County

Project goal: Better understand how local alcohol policies in northern Wisconsin relate to alcohol consumption patterns, traffic crashes, and health outcomes.

Project activities: Review of local alcohol policies, assessment of crash and health outcome data, stakeholder survey, and focus groups. Below is a summary of key findings for Ashland County.

Project lead: Felice Borisy-Rudin, JD, PhD

Wisconsin Alcohol Policy Project,
Comprehensive Injury Center
fborisyrudin@mcw.edu

Key Findings

In discussing issues related to alcohol use in Barron County, focus group participants described:

- A local alcohol culture where drinking is normalized, alcohol is present at various community events and activities, binge or heavy drinking are considered socially acceptable, and stigma exists toward those that do not drink alcohol.
- Concerns about youth related to kids drinking at parties, the impact of parental attitudes on drinking behavior for youth and learning drinking behavior from multi-generational family members, marketing to youth, and the need to enforce the social host law. Some Alcohol Age Compliance Checks (AACC) are being performed.
- Concerns about alcohol-related motor vehicle crashes and alcohol-related behaviors such as alcohol use while operating other vehicles (e.g., ATV, UTV, snowmobile, boat) and related enforcement challenges. However, responses to these behaviors varied by municipality, such as the use of alternative sanctions.
- Overall public health challenges connected to other drug use, insufficient funding and staffing, and mental health issues.
- Other challenges related to balancing alcohol-related concerns with the county's reliance on tourism and recreation.
- Potential solutions raised included incentivizing businesses to have non-alcohol alternatives, increasing recovery support groups, promoting sober days, providing alcohol-free spaces and activities, increasing server training, enhancing partnerships and collaboration, and utilizing social media.
- Prevention for youth focused on schools and education about alcohol and increasing prevention programs.

Recommendations

- Enhance coordination and communication on alcohol-related work across sectors and jurisdictions in the county.
- Expand use of Alcohol Age Compliance Checks (AACC) to reduce sales to underage youth.
- Initiate data collection and analysis for Place of Last Drink (POLD) as a strategy to prevent the over service of alcohol.
- Explore creating alcohol-free events and/or spaces and providing alternatives to alcohol beverages.
- Explore resource needs to support enforcement of the social host law.

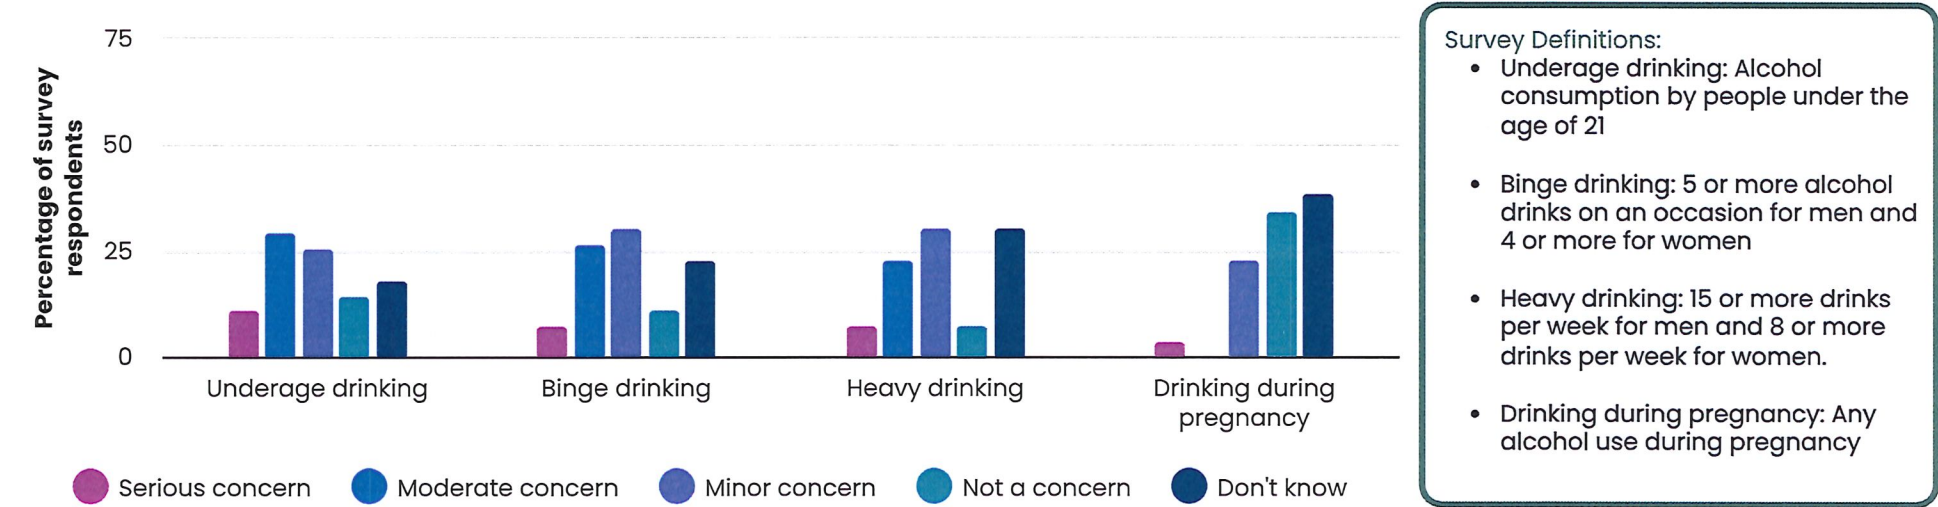

For additional information see the SCAODA alcohol prevention report <https://www.dhs.wisconsin.gov/scaoda/adhocommitteereports.htm>

Barron County Stakeholder Survey (27 respondents)

A survey was offered to key stakeholders including prevention coalition leaders and volunteers, county or local health department staff, county or local law enforcement, municipal clerks, administrators, elected officials such as trustees, alders, or council members, and people who serve on committees or sub-committees that license alcohol. The survey asked about alcohol use concerns and alcohol-related prevention and public safety activities within the jurisdiction in which they serve (county or municipality).

Level of concern with excessive alcohol use

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention defines excessive alcohol use as binge drinking, heavy drinking, and any alcohol use by people who are pregnant or are younger than 21. Visit this link for information on how drinks are defined.

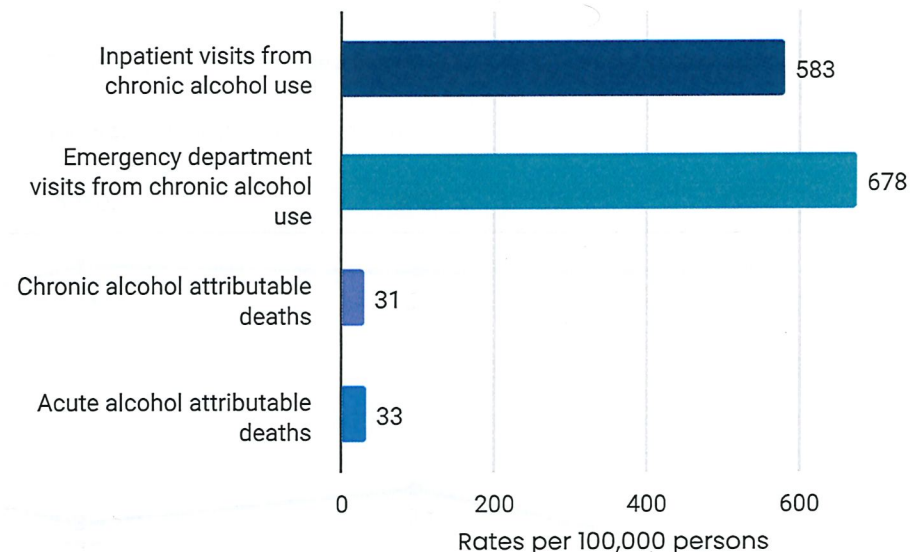

Alcohol-related Prevention & Public Safety Activities

The survey inquired about the frequency of various enforcement activities such as minimum legal drinking age or alcohol age compliance checks, place of last drink, and sober server requirements and enforcement, among others. The percentage of "don't know" responses was high indicating a potential gap in knowledge regarding enforcement of alcohol policies among key stakeholders in Barron County or possible differences in enforcement practices across municipalities within the county. This presents a possible opportunity for future collaboration across stakeholders looking to address alcohol-related harms.

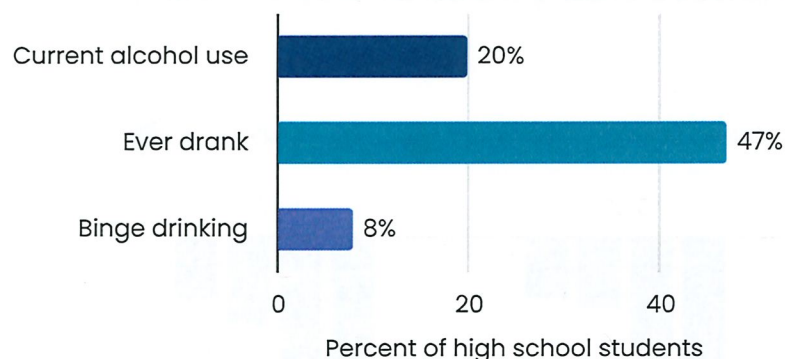

Health Outcomes:

Inpatient and emergency department visits due to chronic conditions such as liver disease and cirrhosis.

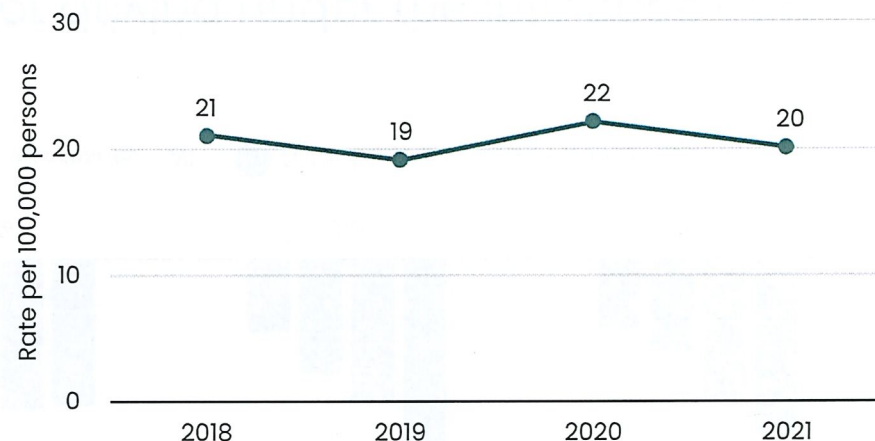

Alcohol-related deaths includes those that are related to drinking alcohol such as alcohol-induced liver cirrhosis or an alcohol poisoning overdose, as well as causes of deaths indirectly related to alcohol use such as accidents when an individual is intoxicated or certain cancers and chronic disease linked to high alcohol use.
